PRIZE FOR POSTER ON WHITE PLAGUE

Commercial High School Pupil Wins $25 and Gold Medal.

WORK WILL BE EXHIBITED.

Soon to Be Seen in Refectory at Prospect Park.

Milton Nadoolman of the Commercial High School has been voted the winner in the poster competition held under the auspices of the Brooklyn Committee on Prevention of Tuberculosis of the Bureau of Charities. The theme was limited to some preventive factor in combating the white plague.

Twelve high schools were in the contest. Gold, silver and bronze medals were given to the winners in each school. Co-operating with the art department of the various high schools, the posters created were adjudged the finest in the history of the high school poster work.

Milton Nadoolman's poster was considered the best by eminent judges, including Charles Dana Gibson and Edwin Blashfield. He was given $25 in addition to a gold medal. His prize-winning poster will be on exhibition shortly in the refectory of Prospect Park.

Graves Moore, general secretary of the tuberculosis committee, has purchased thirty posters at $5 each. These will be placed on exhibition in several of the larger department stores of this borough. They have already been exhibited in the Art Gallery of the Art Alliance of America, where over 4,000 persons saw them.

The following were the prize winners in the competing schools:

Bay Ridge High—First prize, Vilma Johnson; second prize, Phyllis MacKenzie; third prize, Mildred Johnson.

Bushwick High—First prize, Isidor Rothstein; second prize, Melva Price; third prize, Stanley French.

Bryant High—First prize, Esther Carlen; second prize, Frank Bisinger; third prize, Gladys Brown.

Commercial High—First prize, George Norman Kenyon; second prize, Henry Bolman; third prize, Gus Edelstein.

Eastern District High—First prize, Eunice Blaschek; second prize, Max Pomerance; third prize, Jacob S. Zeidenshnir.

Erasmus Hall High—First prize, Helen Hurley; second prize, Fred Reinert; third prize, Louis Kirschman.

Girls' High—First prize, Ottilie Newman; second prize, Gertrude Honigsberg; third prize, Vera Anderson.

Manual Training High—First prize, Cornelius Miller; second prize, Olive Herzberg; third prize, Nicholas Riley.

New Utrecht High—First prize, Milton Wassman; second prize, Alfred Zammataro; third prize, Herbert Ortman.

Flushing High—First prize, Marietta Barnes; second prize, William Sholar; third prize, Waldron O'Connor.

Jamaica High—First prize, Jane Mertz; second prize, John Clark; third prize, Henry Cordes.

Newtown High—First prize, Charlotte Radke; second prize, John C. Locke; third prize, Katharine Schneider.

POLICE COURT CASES.

ADAMS STREET.

Christy Sarli, Nick Restano, Frank Formosa, Angelo Salvati, Cesare Napolitano, James Gaurino, Joseph Tambasco, Barney Russo, Ernest Sola, Benny Cassetta, Nick Papa, Antonio Marturano, Mike Monico, Genato Alio, Tony Jarimbola, Charles Siciliino and Thomas Bonagura, disorderly conduct, paroled, to-morrow.

Benedetto Tealbi, rules of road, $2 fine or two days.

Chester Wilkinson and Edward Sheedy, intoxication, $1 fine or one day each.

Last Call On

$22.00 Apar
House St
Large size; s provision
chamber.
Special at.....

$25.00 Apar
House St
Same as above
white enamel
provision
chamber.....

$30.0
42 inches high, 2
deep; ice capac
provision Chamb

Don't forget your Columbia Re
Purchase your Columbia Grafonol
a full line of all models are show

JOHN A. S

838-840 BROADWAY
Cor. Park Avenue BROOK
PHONE STAGG 1616
OPEN MONDAY AND S

H. S. PUPILS' POSTERS TO BE ON EXHIBITION

Purchased by Brooklyn Committee for Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The Brooklyn Committee for the Prevention of Tuberculosis is preparing to send out a loan collection of posters made recently by pupils of the Brooklyn and Queens high schools. Each school toward the end of the term held a competition, and a number of prize posters have since been purchased by the committee for their traveling exhibition.

"The competition was highly successful, and the posters were so good that the committee wished them placed before a large number of people. The loan collection will be sent to a number of different cities, both East and West," said Graves Moore, secretary of the committee, today.

The names of the students whose posters were purchased, and their schools are: Herman Jaffe, Eastern District; Helen Hurley and Lila Davis, Erasmus Hall; William Henry Albert and Milton Wassmann, New Utrecht; Edna Purdy, Jennie Renzi and Jane Sabatino, Bryant, Long Island City; Frances Ginsberg, Bay Ridge High; Jane Mertz and Mary Ziezler, Jamaica; Isidore Rothstein, Melva Price, Bernard Goldstein and Anthony Cava, Bushwick; E. Layton Vell Jr., and William Sholar, Flushing; Cornelius J. Miller, William Sackern, Daniel Keefe and Irwin Monroe, Manual Training; George Kenyon, L. Germansky, Henry Bolman and Gus Edelstein, Commercial; Elaine Mason, Gertrude Mooney, Gertrude Honigsberg, Helen Goldman and Rose McCullough, Girls High School.

L O S T

BY FANNY HEASLIP LEA

Illustrated by GUS EDELSTEIN

Lovers Three Years Ago-Strangers Now-Whose Fault?

"Keep your fingers crossed--darling!"

Mimi rang for the next corner, her own, and climbed down with a hot, queer feeling behind her eyelids. She hated to leave the man and the girl. She wanted to go on and see where his apartment would be. On Riverside? And would the gray girl find bubbling stew and leaned to stir it. Steam rose in an airy mist. Not for nothing had Mimi ransacked her cupboard; it was a good steam, a tantalizing steam.

She thought, absurdly relieved, "It's going to be all right. Kirk'll like it! I'll just about have time to powder my nose now, before he comes in."

"I think you told me only yesterd
you never wanted to hear that wo
again."

"Oh, Kirk!" said Mimi unhappi

But it was true. She had told hi just that. He had been late getti off in the morning. His breakfa hadn't been ready on time. He h
complained that he was always t
last man to get down to work, a

IS IT IN THE CARDS . . . . BY GUS EDSON